

ALEXANDRIA. VA MONDAY EVENING, NOVEMBER 23.

THE ATTEMPT to lay the blame of the delayed Congressional election in this district upon the district democratic committee, who appointed so late a day for the democratio convention, is frivolous. There was ample time for the election to be held, so that the Congressman from this district could exercise his right to participate in the organization of the U.S. House of Representatives. The Governor of Virginia is the Governor of all the people of the State, not of the democrats only. As Governor, it was nothing to him whether the democrats of the 8.h district held a convention or not, or when they held it. He knew that the district was entitled to representation in Congress on the first day that body met, and he should have mencing to arrive. About twenty of them ordered an election in time to allow it the benefits thereof, utterly irrespective of the benefits thereof, utterly irrespective of the date of democratic, republican or the Speakership and other House offices is alliance conventions. And why he didn't, in active progress. As on Saturday, the no body has yet said. The republicans will impression here to lay is that Mr. Crisp of not hold their convention until the 28th inst .- four days after the democrats hold theirs. According to the absurd reason referred to, the blame should fall upon the republican district committee. But, as said before, the blame lies with no committee, for such bodies are unknown to the Constitution, which provides that when vacancies occur in the representation from any State, the Governor thereof shall issue write of election to fill such vacancies, but it doesn't for Congress by the democratic convention conferred his guite on the gallows. Bine make the issuance of such write contingent for meet in Alexandria to-morrow, on the was shown as he was running from his house, upon the meeting of political conventions. of which it takes no cognizance. But, for all this, the Congressman from this district has been left out in the cold, and for being so he and his constituents, having no body else upon whom to bestow their thanks, can render them to the Governor.

Accombing to the new terms of the settlement of the Virginia debt, a debt that in 1870 amounted to forty-five million dollars, and upon which comparatively little interest has been paid, and which was created President for appointment. upon a guaranteed promise of six per cent. interest, will be liquidated by a simple promise to pay nineteen million-leaving out the Riddleberger bonds-one hundred years after date, at two per cent. Interest for tes, and three per cent. for the remaining ninety years. Of ocurse, the legislature down. Carriages and wagons and the will have to accept these repudiating terms, for to refuse would be even worse. But the right thinking members of that body, after swallowing the dose, will have to swallow something else to take the taste out of their mouths. Why Lieutenant Governor Tyler or anybody else should essay the tesk of proving that the proposed settlement is more "favorable" to the State, that is allows her to repudiate more of her just debt than the repudiating Riddleberger bill, is bard to tell. It will be difficult enough for also caught. Flames broke out in the ruins at hard to tell. It will be difficult enough for also caught. Flames broke out in the rains at tillo were found floating in the Rie Grande, Virginia to borrow money hereaf er on any attracted such a large crowd that up to the time on Saturday. They had been out to death terms, and there is no concelvable reason referred to it was impossible to find out the exfor increasing that difficulty, aspecially when there is no necessity for doing so.

In HIS thankegiving proclamation Governor McKinney used the following words: "Therefore, pursuant to a cherished custom of our fathers, I hereby appoint Toursday, tte 26 h of November as a day of public thankegiving and prayer." Now how the Governor ever got it luto his head that a public thanks giving day at the time designated by the President of the United States is the cherished custom of the fathers of the people of Virginia is hard to tell. The authoritles of the Episcopal church in the State have always recommended annual thanksgiving by the members of that church, but until recent years, and under the new order of things, a thanksgiving proclamation by the Governor of Virginia was a rare occurrence. If the Mayflower had reached Virginia, for which territory she started, instead of landing at Plymouth Rock, to which she was blow by adverse winds, thanksgiving day would have been a "cheriebed custom of

A Water Famine in Brooklyn

NEW YORK, Nov. 23 .- As a result of the big treak in the conduit in East New York letter of the propagande, published with the Saturday afternoon, Brooklyn is on the verge of a water famine. There is scarcely eaough water in the reservoir to last, even with the utmost core, over twelve or fifteen hours. The situation will be serlous, indeed, by this afternoon, un'ers something is done before then to remody it. All the factories using the city's water have been ordered to shut down so as to save the water for the necessities of the general public. The water has been abut off from the tollers in all hotels and office buildings, and as a consequence not an elevator in the whole city is running this morning. Work in every factory where steam is depended on for mo tive power is suspended and the number of those thrown out of work runs far up above 50,000. Well informed persons say that the rapairs cannot be finished before to-morrow noon at the earliest.
